Suggested uses for Agion Active Technology

"I also play hockey. My wife would really appreciate it if my hockey gear didn't stink."

Michael Krieger is an avid cyclist who enjoys long trail rides. To prepare for these mountain treks, Michael trains rigorously in indoor spinning classes. Because he trains before heading to work, Michael often leaves his sweaty clothes in his gym bag during the day.

"During my rides I find myself dripping with sweat, my shirt completely soaked through," said Michael Krieger. "If I don't empty my gym bag right away, it gets pretty funky in there."

In an effort to curb the funk of his gym bag and of himself, Michael tried Agion Active's anti-stink technology. Michael decided to put his shirt to the test by wearing it for three rides in a row without washing it. Would the technology succumb to his stink?

"I wouldn't even dare to sniff a normal shirt after sweating in it for three rides, but Agion Active really works!"

In his Active T, Michael hit the trails for a long ride over mountainous terrain. Afterwards, he stored the shirt in his gym bag overnight. The next day he wore his Active shirt to train during two spin classes that were an hour each. Michael again stored his Active shirt in his gym bag. Later on that evening he removed it from the bag and gave it a thorough sniffing.

"I wore my Agion Active shirt for a total of three rides before washing it. Even after leaving it in my gym bag for another day, it still didn't stink," said Michael. "I wouldn't even dare to sniff a normal shirt after sweating in it for three rides, but Agion Active really works!"
